

You have business goals.

Our managed program
can help you reach them.

Constellation
Managed
Portfolios

Constellation takes a goals-based approach to investing.

It's made up of three key components, which combined, make for a powerful asset to your business:

A managed program

Constellation features a strategic asset allocation process and a sophisticated auto-rebalancing engine. These features work behind the scenes to allocate your clients' investments in accounts best suited to them and rebalance as needed to help add to their overall after-tax returns.

A digital tool

Constellation includes a digital tool to help you talk to your clients about their goals and guide them through the investment process in a clear, simple and interactive way.

Constellation also includes a client-facing portal where clients see a real-time view of their goals and investment portfolios – any day, any time – so they can see how their investments are progressing.

Pathways funds

With Constellation, you can leverage Pathways funds for your clients' investment portfolios. Many of these funds are managed by leading institutional investment managers that focus on concentrated and high-conviction portfolios.

The engine behind your advice

Constellation can help you find these business improvements through some of its key features, like:

Strategic asset allocation

Constellation portfolios are based on strategic model portfolios. These strategic models are reviewed on an ongoing basis and are updated as market expectations change over time. By staying on top of your clients' asset allocation, Constellation can help optimize the performance of their portfolios and can increase their likelihood of achieving their goals.

Auto-rebalancing

Constellation monitors daily and re-balances clients' portfolios as needed to help them meet their short- and long-term goals. This feature helps you save time so you can focus on meaningful client conversations and strengthening client relationships.

Canada Life Global Tactical Fund

Constellation's asset allocation model has a built-in tactical strategy that provides an additional layer of risk management. The Canada Life Global Tactical Fund helps protect clients' portfolios by managing equity exposure over multiple market cycles. One way to help preserve capital in times of sustained market stress is to move out of equities into lower-risk assets, like cash. But to potentially maintain longer-term returns, it's equally important to move back to equities as the market begins to recover

Asset location

Constellation is designed to allocate your clients' investments in a way that maximizes after-tax returns when your clients have a combination of taxable (non-registered), tax-deferred (RRSP) and tax-exempt (TFSA) accounts. It considers the various types of investment income earned and how they are taxed under Canadian tax legislation.

How Constellation helps your business

A consistent, repeatable process

With Constellation, you'll have a simple, repeatable and clearly defined investment process you can use consistently across all your clients' investment portfolios. Each of your clients' goals are treated separately and it considers things like when they want to reach the goal, how important it is and appropriate risk.

A seamless way to stay compliant

You can't always predict the market – and keeping all your clients' investments aligned with their risk tolerance can be challenging. Constellation is pre-programmed to work in your clients' best interests. Their investments are automatically and continuously monitored with the same methodology every day.

If the target allocation on any asset class doesn't align by more than the relative target threshold of 10%, the funds will be automatically re-balanced to bring them back within their targets. All of this is clearly documented in the investment policy statement and client agreement document, helping you stay compliant.

Help building and maintaining portfolios

Constellation is designed to help you deliver a disciplined investment management strategy to your clients by relying on a team of experts to build, monitor and maintain your clients' asset allocation models. These experts run thousands of forward-looking scenarios to determine the best combination of asset classes and complete ongoing reviews.

Opportunities to grow your business

Time is an extremely valuable resource – and with Constellation, you can find more of it. By delegating tasks like portfolio monitoring, rebalancing and executing trades, you find more time to focus on client relationships and give sound advice. More time with clients amounts to more opportunities.

With Constellation, you can find business efficiencies and streamline your investing responsibilities so you can focus on what matters most – client relationships and building your business.
